Members of the City of Atlanta's Board of Ethics

John D. Marshall, Jr., the Board chairperson, is the Assistant Vice President for Legal Affairs at Georgia State University where he advises the university president, provost, and administrators on legal and administrative matters. He has served on various university committees, councils, and boards; on the board of the National Association of College and University Attorneys; and as president of the local division of the American Heart Association and the Morningside-Lenox Park Association. Mr. Marshall earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in political science at Clemson University and his law degree at Emory University School of Law. Serving his second term, Mr. Marshall is the nominee of the Georgia Institute of Technology, Georgia State University, Clark Atlanta University, Morehouse College, Morris Brown College, and Spelman College.

Kenyatta Mitchell, the Board's vice-chairperson, works as an International Economic Development Director for Fulton County. She previously worked as a policy analyst in the Governor's Office of Planning and Budget, legislative liaison for the Georgia Legislative Black Caucus, and director of investigations for the Georgia Real Estate Commission. Ms. Mitchell earned her Bachelor of Arts in history and Masters of Arts in political science and international politics from Clark Atlanta University.

Leah Janus is a past president of the League of Women Voters of Atlanta-Fulton County and the State of Georgia. She helped launch The Advocacy Network, a coalition of community organizations committed to social change, and has served on the boards of numerous organizations, including the Overseas Education Fund, Urban League, Atlanta chapter of the United Nations Association, Planned Parenthood, Northwest Georgia Girl Scout Council, Cohen Home for Assisted Living, and Georgia region of the National Conference for Community and Justice. Ms. Janus earned a Bachelor of Arts degree at Hunter College and a Masters of Art degree at George Washington University. Ms. Janus has served on the board since 2002.

Lawrence S. Levin, Ph.D., is president of The Levin Group LLC, an international firm that provides consulting and executive coaching for chief executive officers, senior executives, and top executive teams. He consults with companies in the pharmaceutical, health care, construction, communications, and biosciences industries and with manufacturing, financial, and governmental institutions. He is a member of the Alliance for Strategic Leadership, a frequent speaker at conferences and association meetings, a regular participant on the Atlanta Business Chronicle show, and author of many publications. Dr. Levin earned his Bachelor of Arts in psychology from the University of Florida and his masters and doctorate degrees in psychology from Georgia State University.

Jacquee Minor is president of J. Minorlogues, LLC and speechwriter to corporate executives, executive directors, business owners, and elected officials. Started in 2001, her company also develops scripts for major conferences and events. Ms. Minor has previously worked in marketing and public relations for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, West End Medical Center, and First Class, Inc. and in journalism as a radio news editor and program director. She now serves on the American Red Cross Minority Recruitment Board, is a member of the Junior League of Atlanta, and is listed in the last three editions of Who's Who in Black Atlanta. Ms. Minor earned her Bachelor of Arts in broadcast journalism at Louisiana State University.

Robert B. Remar is a partner in the law firm of Rogers and Hardin. He is a Fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers, has served on the American Civil Liberties Union Board of Directors for 17 years and on its executive committee for the past 13 years, and currently also serves on the boards of the local Federal Defender Program and the Georgia Appellate Practice and Educational Resource Center. Previously Mr. Remar served as an administrative law judge for the Georgia Public Service Commission and worked for eight years as staff attorney for legal services programs in Georgia and Massachusetts. Mr. Remar earned his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Massachusetts and his law degree at Boston College Law School.
